What is the Republic of Kanata? Questions and Answers

What is the Republic?

The Republic of Kanata is a lawful sovereign nation that has proclaimed its independence from the British monarchy and its tyrannical system of "crown law". Kanata was convened at a founding Assembly in Winnipeg on January 15, 2015. This Assembly established a new Republican jurisdiction separate from Crown authority. The Republic has over 1,000 founding signatories. It reflects the wishes of a majority of Canadians, who when polled in 2014 favored by 58% to end all ties with the British monarchy.

The Republic of Kanata is also the fulfillment of the aspirations of the first patriots who attempted unsuccessfully to create such a Canadian Republic in 1837. "Kanata" is a Huron indigenous word meaning "our communal village".

Is the Republic of Kanata an actual lawful government?

Yes. Whatever system of government and law free people agree to establish among themselves is inherently lawful. Sovereignty resides in the people, who may withdraw their consent and participation in any government at any time. The Republic of Kanata expresses the will of a majority of Canadians for an independent Republic free of the British Crown.

The Republic's founding Proclamation disestablished the authority of the British Crown in Canada and replaced it with a sovereign nation consisting of free, self-governing people. The constitutional legitimacy of the Republic will be ratified by an Act of Supremacy at its first General Congress. For now, Republican Courts will administer the common law everywhere in the new nation. The authority of all former agents and officials of the crown was formally revoked by the Proclamation of January 15, 2015.

How does the new Republic affect my life?

Within any community that declares for the Republic and establishes its own local Republican Assembly, the following laws and measures will be enacted by the people:

Freedom from Debt Slavery: All of your former debts, mortgages and taxes are declared legally null and void by the Constitution of the Republic, as are any claims on you made by the former government of Canada. Any attempt by agents of the old regime of "Canada" to collect such debts or force such claims on you will now constitute illegal acts. The perpetrators can be arrested by Republican sheriffs and tried for treason by the common law courts of the new Republic. All banks, credit and money supply will be placed under the control of the people through their local Republican Assembly.

Income Tax is abolished within the jurisdiction of the Republic: Public funds will be raised by assessing and lawfully seizing the assets, lands and properties of criminal or genocidal corporations, churches, the super wealthy, foreign powers and the former government of Canada.

Prosperity: You are eligible to receive up to two hundred hectares of land formerly held by the so called "crown" as well as a guaranteed annual income. This land and wealth will be expropriated from former crown agencies and their foreign corporate partners.

Justice: You will exercise direct control over the law and the courts of the nation by electing its judges, juries and sheriffs.

Direct Democracy: If you are sixteen years or older, you can now vote in elections every two years to the General Congress and every year in local Republican Assemblies. You can also recall any elected or non-elected public official, judge or sheriff who has violated their oath of office or lost the confidence of the people.

What is the Common Law?

It is the Natural Law that is the basis of all legitimate government and authority. It is inherent in all men and women and establishes them as unconditionally free, self-governing and sovereign people. The common law is superior to and outweighs all government statutes and other legal systems such as church "canon law" and so-called "admiralty law" employed by governments to rule arbitrarily. "The common law is common sense written by God in the hearts of the people" (Justice Edward Coke, 1628)

Are Common Law Courts legal and valid?

Yes. Their authority and legitimacy as upholders of the rights of the people is recognized by the United States Supreme Court and even by Canadian "crown" courts, which are descended from the English common law tradition.

That tradition recognizes that the people themselves are the best guarantors of their own freedom; and that therefore, the law is upheld and defined by citizen juries and enforced by local sheriffs answerable to the people and not to a central government.

Who is Kevin Annett and what is his role in the Republic?

Kevin Annett - Eagle Strong Voice is a seventh generation Canadian of Scots-Irish-Metis descent whose ancestors took part in the 1837 rebellion against the Crown. Kevin is a leader of the Common Law and Republic movement, and of the International Tribunal into Crimes of Church and State (ITCCS). Born and bred on the prairies and west coast, Kevin is the former United Church minister who first exposed and documented genocide by church and crown in the Indian schools. (www.murderbydecree.com) . He serves as a special adviser to the Republican government and sits on the Provisional Council of the Republic in Winnipeg.

How do I go about joining the Republic and getting involved?

The Republic of Kanata is a fact. As of January 15, 2015, once you become a Citizen you live within its jurisdiction anywhere on the territory of the former "Dominion of Canada". You can declare your citizenship within the Republic by taking a Pledge to the new nation and receiving official identification as a member of the Republic. You can also take an oath of office as a sheriff or other public official, and become involved in your local Republican Assembly, by contacting republicofkanata@gmail.com .

Do indigenous nations have to be a part of the new Republic?

No. If all of the people of any genuine indigenous nation decide not to be affiliated with the Republic, they may legally secede and establish their own separate nation within the Republic. The indigenous nation may not create laws or practices that violate the Constitution and common law of the Republic. If the indigenous nation remains within the Republic, it will have guaranteed representation within the General Congress.

Am I at risk under the new Republic?

There are risks involved in any freedom movement. But the law and the people are with us, protected by our growing network of sworn Republican Sheriffs. Your liberty and security will be guaranteed the more you make the Republic a reality in your own community by refusing to participate in the old system called "crown law" and "Canada".

What do I do next?

- Take the pledge to the Republic and become a Citizen.
- Join your nearest Republican Assembly or form one, pass laws, and help educate and mobilize your family and neighbors for the Republic.
- Stop paying federal taxes, keep your money locally, and revoke any oath of allegiance to the British Crown.
- Receive training as a Republican Sheriff and defend your fellow citizens.
